KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

You should not invest in this Fund if you do not understand or are not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

Market Risk	Factors (e.g. macroeconomic developments, political conditions) that affect the overall performance of financial markets may lead to lower prices of securities and losses for investors.
Counterparty Risk	The Fund is exposed to risks arising from solvency of its counterparties (e.g. custodian, broker, banks) and their ability to respect the conditions of contracts or transactions.
Liquidity Risk	Liquidity risk occurs when certain securities in a fund's portfolio may be difficult or impossible to sell at a particular time, which may prevent the redemption of investment in a fund until its assets can be converted to cash.
Reinvestment Risk	When income is received from the investments, or when the investments are sold and reinvested, there is a risk that the return would be lower than the return realized previously.
Foreign Currency Risk	The value of investments may be affected by fluctuations in the exchange rates of securities in a different currency other than the base currency of the Fund.
Country Risk	The Fund may suffer losses arising from investments in securities issued by/in foreign countries due to political, economic and social structures of such countries.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

(from the JPMorgan Asia Equity Dividend Fund Monthly Commentary dated December 31, 2020)

Markets –Asian markets continued its strength in December driven by COVID-19 vaccine rollouts, expectations for economic recovery and a weaker US dollar. In Asia, earnings expectations continued to broaden out and improve across the region. Overall, country and sector performance diverged and value outperformed growth again.

Helped – Overweight in technology. Stock selection in consumer discretionary.

Hurt – Stock selection in financials.

Month in review

The Target Fund outperformed the benchmark for two months in a row.

On the positive side, overweight in technology contributed the most as the sector performed the best. Samsung Electronics rallied on the back of positive memory cycle and TSMC continued its strength. Other names such as Accton (networking equipment maker) and Delta (power system maker) also rose on expectation of cyclical capex upcycle. In consumer discretionary, not owning Alibaba added value as its share was dampened by regulatory tightening. Other Chinese consumer names such as Shenzhou, Haier Smart Home and Midea also did well on solid growth. Other top contributors include Rio Tinto which rose as analysts started to revise up iron ore forecasts, and Xinyi Glass which benefitted from strong product upcycle.

On the negative side, stock selection in financials hurt as the sector took a breather after the strong run-in previous month. BOC Hong Kong corrected due to resurgence of COVID-19 cases locally and concerns around economic recovery. China Merchants Bank was also weak as the market was concerned about the sector's capital adequacy. Other key detractors include a few Chinese growth consumer names which do not fit their income requirement, including Baidu, Pinduoduo and Xiaomi. Defensive utility CLP also underperformed in a rising market

Looking ahead

At the start of the new year, the economic recovery remains uneven, but with hope for a broad recovery later in 2021. The final months of 2020 saw positive announcements on vaccines that have been welcomed by markets and governments alike, supporting the growth story for the year ahead.

Asian equities' Price-to-Book ratio is now slightly higher than long term averages, but corporates' earnings strength continued to broaden out to the more cyclical segment.

The path of the US dollar will also be key, as it has weakened considerably over the past quarter. Further weakness would provide support to Asian equities.

The Fund Manager maintains a diversified positioning in quality franchises, defensives and value cyclicals for both income and growth opportunities.

The Fund Manager remains overweight in technology and financials, and have topped up materials.
